Opening Reception: Friday, October 18th, 2013, 6-9 p.m.

(Inter) Connections

(Inter) Connections is a juried exhibition that explores the concept of “interconnectivity”: the idea that all things, people, and environments have a inter-relatedness that connects us. Artists selected for the exhibition have explored this concept through a variety of expressions, interpretations, and approaches.

Theories on interconnectedness have been proposed by many, however, women of color scholars have championed this framework for creating non-oppositional solutions for change. Thus, (Inter) Connections marks WoCA's very first exhibition featuring artists from various backgrounds and geographical locations, while opening an important dialogue across multiple artistic mediums and narratives, including information seeking, social media & networks; biology, identity, nature & ecosystems; aesthetics, and society & politics.

So come out and enjoy our exciting exhibition reception on Friday, October 18th, from 6-9 p.m., featuring curatorial remarks from guest juror, Lilia Kudelia, Adjunct Curator at Dallas Contemporary (Dallas, Texas), an awards presentation, and light refreshments and drinks.

This is a show you don't want to miss!
